

THE DANIEL BOONE TAXPAYERS ASSOCIATION (DBTA)

The Daniel Boone Taxpayers Organization is re-emerging from inactivity over the last several years to once again attempt to have a local and statewide voice in how education funding is derived and spent. The organization has become a “cyber-organization”. It is all centered on the DBTA web page (www.dbta101.wordpress.com/) which links to both our FaceBook and Twitter pages. Membership is free. Membership is requested to express the strength of taxpayer’s opinions and proposed actions concerning:

1. tax rates (e.g. DBSD can potentially raise property taxes by 8.5% this year),
2. school spending and
3. alternative ways that education funding should be raised.

However, membership is not required to use any aspect of our cyber-space / social network. DBTA will not collect dues or contributions, will not act as fundraiser for or endorse any political candidate and won’t put a drag on anyone’s time with meetings that have to be attended. DBTA will make known opportunities for contributions for political candidates / issues from time to time and will post announcements of meetings that members within the cyber-group may wish to hold.

DBTA is a member group of the Pennsylvania Coalition of Taxpayer Associations (PCTA) – a group of 55 taxpayer groups across the Commonwealth that are all wrestling with the same local problems of run-away property tax increases. The Coalition, and thus our organization, has as one of its ultimate aims the passage of the School Property Tax Elimination Act (SPTEA) which has gained a lot of traction among state legislators in recent months. To read our posts; become interactive on this critically important issue and learn what is going on both locally and statewide on the issue of property taxation for education funding, visit our website at www.dbta101.wordpress.com/ . Our email is nopropertytaxes@yahoo.com . We need to hear from you. We need everyone to get involved!
