UNION TWP., Pa. -

A knife was found in the locker of a 10th grade student Wednesday afternoon, police said.

They said a locker search was conducted when school officials learned that a student may have had a weapon.

At no point, school officials said, were students or faculty members in danger.

State police said they are also investigating the discovery of racially charged graffiti on a bathroom wall at Daniel Boone.

District officials said the situation began when a former student made some comments about student athletes on Facebook.

The superintendent said this is the first situation like this he's seen in his time in the district.

He spoke with concerned parents Wednesday afternoon.

It is not clear if the incident has anything to do with the knife that was found in the school, police said.
